“ Picked her up just across the border of NC walking to get to the airport in Norfolk VA, angry at someone who upset her. I didn't know her but her plane was not leaving until the next day and so talked her into staying at my house and took her next day to the airport. I just came across this in an email a week later in 2010: and when email bounced back, I tried googling. This breaks my heart to me

It's Christine from New Hampshire. Home safe and sound thanks to you!

I really can't put it into words how grateful I am to you for your kindness last week.

I will be in touch - send me the blogs and web sites we discussed when you get a chance.

You are a wonderful person :-)

“ I only met Christine, and Tommy, once about a month ago, but she really left a positive impression on me. I live one street over from her at the beach and was returning from a walk one day, when I noticed how well behaved her dog was as he walked without a leash. I decided to let her know how impressed I was by that and told her my own dog from many years ago was the same way. My dog, Sugar, seemed to understand everything I said to her, and was also well disciplined. In addition, Sugar, had a great smile and a happy disposition - just like Tommy! Christine told me that Tommy, too, has always understand things she said to him, even if it was the first time she said it. We talked for about a half hour and discovered that we had a lot in common such as, our values, lots of love for others, zest for life and sense of adventure. It's interesting that we both agreed that life is short to be any other way.. She told me that she had just paid her landlord to remain in the same rental house for the entire summer. So, at the end of our conversation, I walked away feeling excited that I had a found a new wonderful friend to get to know and a beautiful dog/person (Tommy) to enjoy, too. Since we had neglected to exchange contact info, I looked for her many times during my walks, and thought it strange after a month's time, I hadn't run into her again. She had mentioned the name of the small street she lived on, and I stopped by last week to ask a neighbor if they knew her so I could perhaps go knock on the door. That person had seen her walking Tommy, at times, but didn't know which house she was in. Then, finally yesterday, I decided to just go to the first house and knock on the door. Suddenly, a neighbor from a few doors down, called to me and asked me to come talk to him, because he had information about the person who had lived there. Needless to say, I was both shocked and saddened to learn of her sudden passing. According to all of the lovely posts people have made about her, I see that I was exactly correct in liking her and recognizing what a wonderful person she was - even after only thirty minutes of conversation. My heart goes out to all of you who had the good fortune to have her in your lives.

“ Christine was such a kind & caring person. She became acquainted with my daughter when they both worked in the Sheriff's office in Brentwood. She & my daughter did quite a bit of kayaking together. When my husband was diagnosed with lung cancer he began some aggressive treatments that required us to be away from home for 8-10 hours. We had a puppy & we were worried about leaving her all day. Christine offered to come to our house with Tommy & take care of our puppy. I'm not sure she realized what a gift she was giving us. With all we had to worry about it was a relief not to have to worry about the puppy as well. I ran into her maybe a month or so ago at our local post office. She seemed so happy. She had a place by the beach & things were working well for her. I am so sorry for her son & all of her family members. She was something special & she will be missed by many.

“ Christine was a dear friend who taught me, through both words and actions, that it's okay to make mistakes, to not be the best at everything. She helped me to internalize the truth of that, and in doing so she opened up the world to me. I try things I never would have before and I find joy in doing them imperfectly. Christine was also one of the kindest people I've known. When my dad was in the throes of cancer and I was with my family in Boston for long days of scans and treatments, Christine drove to Center Barnstead to take care of the dog so that there'd be one less thing for my parents to worry about. She didn't even know my parents. That's just who she was. I'm going to miss her so much, as I'm sure you will too. Your family is in my thoughts and prayers.

With deepest condolences,
