“ Jake was a part of my original dream team of advisees. He was always quick to add a needed joke, a needed shoulder, a needed hand to hold or smile to brighten the day. There were many wonderful days of adding descriptors for our group sentence, planning our escape from zombies and of course laughter. His compassion for others was awe inspiring. He LOVED all things nature and our camping trips through school were always a joyful time for him. My heart goes out to all those left behind. I miss you, Jake.

“ To say I am heartbroken is probably an understatement. Jake was the type of friend who would always have your back, he was the guy who would make you laugh, cry with you, and had a smile that would go on for days. He and I had become fast friends, and I can still remember running into him at a concert and as soon as he saw me he ran through people to hug me. Him and I lost contact in recent years, but I always thought we'd reconnect someday. I am deeply saddened. Remember there's a light that never goes out, and he will always be a guiding force in many of our lives:

“ Barbara, David, CJ, Todd & Dylan;

We just want to express our heartfelt sympathies. If it were only as simple as saying the right words to ease your pain. I keep thinking of the sweet little blonde hair soft spoken little boy and my heart aches for all of you. I truly do believe that we are each here for a lesson. Those of us who pass early are those that have elevated and learned all the lessons their souls were sent to learn. Jacob was such a sweet, kind, loving little boy. All of the tributes show that he became a sweet, kind loving young man. I pray that all of your beautiful memories can sustain you through this most painful time. Know that although he is not physically here, he will always be with you.

“ I'm thankful for the time I got to spend with Jake while he lived with David and me. It gave me a chance to get to know the kind, gentle and outgoing person he was. He loved being in the woods , which was almost everyday as we are surrounded by miles of trails in any direction. He would be out there either riding his dirt bike or hiking in his bare feet. I remember saying to him " That's why you have poison ivy!" As he was jumping up and down in our driveway pouring rubbing alcohol on himself trying to " dry it out".

We were able to share our love for nature while hiking the woods with our dogs. Jake would point out the different plant life and tell me all about them.

Jake also loved riding our horses. He once said that his" two favorite things were being in the woods and riding horses and being able to do them at the same time made both even better"

One my fondest memories is riding with Jake and my best friend Tracy. Tracy was riding her off the track thoroughbred, I was on my barrel racing horse and Jake was riding our faithful horse " Gotch" (his favorite) in that order. We were leisurely trotting down the trail when Tracy's horse looked back at mine and I knew what was coming next. I yelled back " Hold on Jake!" As Tracy's horse took off at a gallop and our horses followed. All three went thundering down the trail, around a corner and up to the top of the hill where we finally came to a stop. Then I heard Jake yell from directly behind me "That was awesome!!" I yelled back "That was not awesome that was out of control!!"

Jake and Tracy just sat on their horses laughing at my discontent.

Jake we will always love and miss you! Thanks for being a part of life "Pooh Bear"!

“ Jake was a student in my music classes at Sparhawk. He was also one of the first students to make me feel like I was part of the amazing Sparhawk Community my first year as a teacher. I suspect I wasn't the only person he made feel this way. He was a curious and interested student and will remain a strong yarn in the cozy fabric of memories of Sparhawk High. Rest easy dear Jake. - Vanessa Davis

“ Jacob was a dear friend, classmate, and teammate. Most of my memories of Jake involved us jogging through the woods laughing at the kind of jokes that were only funny after a few miles of running. Sparhawk was a close-knit community, our cross country team even more so. It's been years since we saw each other, but it breaks my heart, and those of my former classmates to lose one of our own as dear to us as Jake was. Jacob was kind, open, and a pleasure to be around.

Our hearts are with Jacob's family.

“ Wherever Jacob went and whenever he was present a beautiful light surrounded him.

His light was love, compassion and gentleness. Jacob cared for others. He wanted to see others smile, love, laugh and enjoy life. Jacob and I shared many engaging conversations about the earth, animal totems, spirituality, politics, health and humanity. I loved my chats with Jacob. He was such an independent creative thinker, deeply insightful, and intuitive. He was passionate about nature, animals and people. Jacob was a strong advocate for human kindness.

I will miss Jacob so much. We all will. When I remember him, it is his benevolent spirit that shines forth and touches me. Let this be the gift of his life, kindness, love and unity.

Jacob's time with us was brief, yet his light touched our lives in such a deeply meaningful way.

When I think of my beautiful nephew, I think of love and all that is beautiful, spiritual, magical and whimsical. I think of this poem, "People Come Into Your Life For A Reason" I think Jake would like this. I think he would like me to share this. Here is the YouTube link:

I have attached a photo. In this photo, note the light shines directly on Jacob.

Thank you Barbara and Doug and all the love your family gave to Jake. Thank you to Jakes best friend Ryan and to the woman he adored, Emma. Thank you for all the love you gave to Jacob.

Jacob is a part of all of us, as long as we live, he will live within us, sharing his love and kind spirit.

Love, Aunti Di

“ Jake was such a light. I was so lucky to have spent a month with him in the Arizona wilderness during Prescott College's orientation. He was generous, kind and had a knack for making us all laugh no matter how exhausted or grumpy we were.

I got to spend more time with Jake when he rented my loft for a few weeks one summer. He was a thoughtful housemate and a wonderful friend. He was a good listener. I knew I could speak openly with him and feel no judgement. I'm so grateful to have had his friendship.

I'm so heartbroken. I'm sending my thoughts and love to his friends and family.

“ I will always remember this sweet and loving boy who was at the wonderful holiday celebrations at my Aunt, his grandmothers house. My heart is broken.

Peg Anderson - August 08, 2017 at 12:22 PM

“ My daughter, Mary, was a classmate of Jake's at Sparhawk, and part of an amazing, close-knit group of friends whom I was fortunate to get to watch grow up and share their teen adventures together. On a few ski trips to NH, I got to listen to their wondrous conversations on the ride back and forth (and all weekend) on life, the universe, ethics - stuff I never would have expected from them, at least not openly in my presence. And a lot of silly jokes, too, of course. Jake was such a caring, curious and kind kid (as were they all - quite a group). I also recall Jake spending a Halloween with us, at the age when I think both he and Mary felt a little too old to "trick or treat," but not quite ready to let the magic go completely, so we played spooky music in our drive, lit a fire and I laughed while Mary and Jake (gently) haunted the little kids coming to the house. My last memory of Mary and Jake together was when they decided to get Reiki-certified. Because being able to heal (people or animals) was so important to both of them.

 I hadn't seen Jake for a few years, but about two years ago, we crossed paths at David's restaurant, where Jake was working. It took me a minute to place him, and then it took him a minute to recognize me, but when he did, that incredibly radiant smile he had burst out, and he hugged me like a long lost friend.

Jake was an amazing soul. I know my sadness can't compare to what his family is feeling, but I want to add my voice to the chorus that he touched - and was loved by - many people.
