“ Ryan, you were one of the first friends and best friends i had when i lived in New Hampshire. Never have i met someone that was as easy to get along with. I still think about that album we were going to make together called grizzypaux. I think i still have one of the songs somewhere. Even though we have not seen each other since my wedding years ago and grew apart as the years went by, I do not think i will ever make another friend whom i felt such a connection with. I just learned of your passing today. Words can not express the sadness i feel at this very moment. I read about your passing at work and had to fight back the tears to get through my last couple hours. My sincere condolences to your family. I am so so sorry for your loss. I will never forget you bro.

“ Ryan, I will never forget the time when you were around 5 I told you I killed the easter bunny, you just hung your head and let out this long sigh said okaaay and punched me right in the eye and said How You like Dat? We shared the same sense of humor. I taught you how to give the middle finger and how to irritate Keith and April until you were old enough to figure things on your own. We didn't see each other as often as we both would like but the conversation we had at the Christmas party well brother you have now left that responsibility all in my hands. Typical of you to bust my chops. Love ya man.....

“ Ryan was such a kind soul. He always knew what to say to cheer you up or make you laugh. Every time I needed a hug or smile or encouraging words, Ryan was there. He knew how to make anything fun (especially work- prank calling each other's departments at Hannaford). Rest in Paradise, Punky

“ When Ryan and I got together, we would talk about scary movies - what was getting released, what we thought of the ones we saw, and ones we didn't. The same with music... It's sad that I won't have those conversations with him anymore. He would at times add a movie line of dialog to any of life's circumstances and I would get it. A lot of the time laughing at how he could come up with it instantly.

We didn't always see eye to eye but we always would mend things eventually.

I will miss him terribly.....

God Bless you Ryan from your older brother. May you rest in peace.

“ Ryan, I'll never forget that time your Dad and I took all you kids up climbing Mt Monadnock, You couldn't have been more than 5 or 6, it was a warm and sunny spring day. We had a great time. You all climbed well without a single complaint and everything went beautifully;;; until we were almost all the way back down to the car. You got to running down hill so fast at one point that you couldn't stop or slow down. You tripped and went flying full faced into a big mud puddle. You were soaked but you were laughing your head off. You always had such a great sense of humor, even as a little kid. You'll always be in my heart but I will miss seeing around. Till we meet again,,,, Rest in Peace my Brother.

“ Ryan was the best he was a brother and friend to the many lives he crossed. There are many memories I have whether it was at Josh and I apartment, the Maguire basement, parties at the thresher house, or just a phone call from him he just had such a light about him especially around family and friends. I can't thank him enough for introducing me to my some of my favorite directors, musicians and movies a soul taken far to soon FOREVER 27 INDEED LOVE YOU BROTHER FROM ANOTHER MOTHER

ken fontaine - February 18, 2015 at 07:05 PM

“ As most people are I'm shocked and saddened to hear of Ryan's passing. The memories of time spent with Ryan come flooding back and always bring a smile to my face. Whether it be in classes with Mr. Cameron or lively debates about music (Ryan, you and I both know we won each other over with some of our favorite respective artists) during 15 minute break at school. The times spent at Josh's...I could go on. Thank you for being a great friend and lighting up the room with your laugh. Gone too soon...rest easy brother.

“ Ryan was my baby. He use to say how we were kindred spirits, both having the same sense of humor. At times we would be thinking the same thing and finish each other's sentences.
Most times I don't know how I will be able to go. He would text me every morning and call me every night to tell me how his day went.
My heart aches to hear his laugh and see his handsome face. Please God give me strength to carry on

“ He was a great baby brother and a very loving uncle. We loved every humorous second with him. He was always so happy spending time with the babies, watching a Bruins game or having some wine on the deck and pushing my husband down(we know the truth:P).Memories will have to do until we can make more again someday. I love you forever and will miss you every second you're not here.
