“ My cousin Wallis and I had a special relationship that started with my mother being her god mother. We shared many family get togethers. When Wallis moved from Norwell she made a special moment when she gave me one of her mother's favorite earrings. Wallis had put one earring on her bracelet. I put the one she gave me on my bracelet. It created a special bond that I will never forget. She was my special "Cuz". We had so many meaningful conversations both by telephone and in person. I will miss these as I will miss her.

“ I met Wally though her Mom Vicky who was my voice teacher for many years. Vicky told me that she named her Wallis after Mrs Wallis Simpson who was behind the abdication of the king of England in the late 1930s. She and Vicky very close in their personality and their love of life. At least they are back together again.... Adieu.

“ This woman, when I first met her, almost scared me. But, the more I got to talk to her and hang out with her, the more she made me appreciate my own stubbornness. Although I haven't seen her in over a year, I thought of her often.
