“ People were surprised when Cathy and I started being friends and sitting together at Master McGrath's. When people would question it (and they did!) she would answer "Two Cathys -- no waiting". She was funny -- our conversations were always punctuated by laughter and I think the folks were envious of the good time we always had -- but she was very serious about her work. We shared an old-fashioned work ethic and talked about our jobs all the time. Behind the Deli counter she was the unchallenged Queen of everything. She knew the best deals and the best products, and took great pride in guiding the customers to the best decisions. I gave up trying to pick products -- I would ask her "Ok, Cath ... what do I want?" One time, when she finished telling me what she was giving me and sent me on my way, the lady in back of me said "I'll have what she got..." We were both hard-working single girls trying to make a living and both fighters for what we deserved compensation-wise. Sisters-in-arms, perhaps. I have not only lost my Deli expert, but one of my closest friends. I miss her, and will never forget her.

“ I'll always remember Cathy as the little girl I used to take fishing when she stayed with Mom. Didn't fish that good and was terrible at telling jokes but fun to be with just the same.

I remember waiting on Catherine when she would come into SCU, and she always collected dimes. Always a pleasure to wait on.
