“ Your Cheer in the Break for Nanny

Every ocean wave holds a cheer then gives away to a whisper endlessness crashing & crashing 'round this is your song, Nanny

I hear your "hello" as the starfish grows in five directions, holding my hands your bracelets like wind chimes as you trace my knuckles with your fingernails

You show me strength can mean gentleness, that there's wonder in seashells, four leaf clovers, lemon zinger tea with honey, even the short gnomes with the hairy nose warts on your staircases

There is such patience in your sense of humor where a sliver of light lays there you are turning sunshine into trumpets salt of the earth, I say salt of the sea

Like mermaids who dare not be seen though peek their heads out of the sea like seals to check on us while we're busy packing up beach chairs & towels

Avoiding sharp rocks on the shoreline before life & the surf gets loud again you steal a look at our oblivious, innocent selves, say a prayer & when the whisper

Of a receding wave goes quiet and the gulls over head suspend still between gusts, your loving song unfolds onto our shore. There is always your cheer in the break, your bright turquoise love whispering a song from the sea.

“ I met Connie when my father John was placed in the room next to Connie at Kirkwood Corners, She was so welcoming to my father and me and it was surreal as my mom's name was Connie and she was born the same year and lived in Hampton! Connie was a beautiful person, loved talking to her and she always was concerned about my father who could be a curmudgeon at times! I am so glad that Connie came into our lives, she was a true angel!

the service. I could get no Audio at all, I called Remick and Gendron twice but they could do nothing about the sound, beautiful picture.

“ I wish to send my deepest condolences to all of Connie's family for the loss of an amazing person. I look back fondly on all the years I was lucky enough to have her as my nurse as well as my friend. The smile on her face when she came to pick up Lola one of my kitties. I will miss her always.

“ Connie was my aunt and I feel so blessed that she was. During the “Rocky Pond” years Aunt Connie would gather up six or eight of us youngsters and take us blueberry picking up on Rocky Pond Mountain. When it rained and the skies cleared she would lead us out to search for red newts. Under the big pines she would pull back the pine needles to find the newts which enriched our young lives. We have all lost a kind soul but my heart is so much larger for having felt Connie's kindness over six decades. God bless you Connie Depuy.
