“ My father was really smart and touched by the nobility of so many of the poor people overseas. He was a survivor, a fighter, a competitor and a good man deep down.

“ TO: Uncle Guy & Family, My earliest memories of my Uncle Guy was his adventurous personality and his love of family. He was very proud of his children and their accomplishments in life. As his niece, he always called me on my birthday which made me feel special. He was very close to my mother, Auntie Josie. My mother, now deceased, was very protective of her younger brother, and they confided in each other on many matters of life. Our visits to NH were enjoyable with lots of food and heated conversations. He was a private man with many deep thoughts. When he took sick we communicated via email, as his speaking and hearing abilities were impaired. His vast interests always intrigued me and he was very interesting to converse with. I will miss him. Love, Niece Terry
