“ I am sorry to hear of Jim's passing. My deepest sympathies to Nancy, Matt, Charles, the grandchildren and the great grandchildren. I had the pleasure of working with Jim and Nancy in Portsmouth in the early nineties. Jim and Nancy went out of their way to make me feel at home in Rye. I enjoyed many good times and dinners at their house. I also greatly appreciated that they took care of my border collie many times while I was away. You will be missed, Jim. RIP.

“ Yesterday, Sept. 27, Rye lost a gracious and doggedly principled citizen. Jim Raynes led Rye's Conservation Commission for many years, and many of the town's forests, wetlands and open spaces are preserved because Jim had a conservationist's vision that he worked tirelessly to enact.

In an era of far too much egotism among our civic leaders, Jim stands apart; he never sought public recognition nor did he regard one's political orientation of much importance. What Jim valued was team work and a deep respect for the natural world – our oceans, our woodlands; our salt marshes – that enrich our lives here on New Hampshire's Seacoast. Jim Raynes was an unusual civic leader – I wish we had more like him.

Ronnie, Your words describe his character with such truth. He loved Rye and hoped to help preserve it's wetlands and open spaces and especially Goss Farm.
