“ RIP Kelly, I won't forget the memories we had growing up having parents in the same companies with company outings etc and other things we've been through together. I wish we had kept more in touch now. I was sad to hear of your passing. I will let you know I have always thought of you every time I saw a blueberry pie and I still always will. That was one fun memory. Kristen Sturgeon

Eileen I am truly at a lost as to what to say. I feel a pain so deep inside of me. I know Kelly as a Baby as a Teenager and as a young Lady. She made me feel that this thing would never get the best of her. She always showed so much courage in dealing with it. I believed someday she would get a handle on it and go on. I know she loved you very much and your deep love for her was there for everyone of us to see. You're the strongest women I have ever known. Please find a place inside yourself to let go and feel the sorrow. But at the same time remember you were always there for her come rain or shine and the love she had for you could only have been matched by the love you had for her.

“ *Eileen and Family--We all knew this tragic day was coming--just as Kelly did--but it doesn't make it any easier for any of us. She approached her life in such a brave way--I know you are all so proud of that! I hope you will find solace in knowing she is finally at peace! “ Eileen and family - I am so sorry for your loss. A few years ago someone told me that grief is the homage we pay to love. We grieve because we loved. I never knew Kelly but I know you loved her. I have said prayers that you find peace at this very difficult time.

“ I knew this day would come but it still isn't any easier. Grateful to know that her battle with the pain and the suffering is over. Now the pain begins for us with her loss and the fight to remember all the memories we had with her to lessen that pain. I know I will cherish her memories the many I have shared with her and Tiffanie. I will miss kelly her laugh her will to live her love of racing and even her smelly pharts!! Life is short cherish those u love rest easy now Kelly I will never forget u!
