“ *I just heard this morning...
My deepest condolences to Kim's family.
Kim and I shared a series of escapades in our younger years and I let it go as that. We graduated high school together and hung out at his house in Gorham.
I wish that we got together in our later years to reminisce. I can just picture that laugh of his.*

“ You were a straight shooter and a low-maintenance everyman in an age of male pampering (guilty as charged). It will continue to sadden me that I never got to know you, in my adult years, as much as I would have liked; but I'll cherish the good times we shared. You were a good man and I always enjoyed your company. I'll miss you, brother.

“ Hands down the fun uncle who adored all of us. I will remember the infamous candy cupboard that he shared with us, the ice cream, Mrs. Field's cookie treats, late night inappropriate movies, walks to the Fourth of July carnival, the look on his face when he met my children for the first time, and countless times he called me "peanut" and kissed me on the head. I will miss him terribly and will forever keep him in my heart.

“ I had the honor of spending time with Uncle Kim the night before his eldest daughter's wedding. He and I spent much of the night in the parking lot drinking Natty Ices and warm tequila that he pulled from his trunk. We didn't just get drunk. Uncle Kim talked for so long about his family and how proud he was of his daughters. Uncle Kim talked about how much my parents and extended family meant to him. As many often do after a few drinks, we shared a lot. My brothers and cousins all ended up celebrating with Uncle Kim that weekend.

As us younger guys were ready to crawl in bed after two nights of celebrations and libations, there was Uncle Kim--on the deck of our rented condo in his tux with not a wrinkle or piece out of place. (He was looking up at the stars explaining some of the constellations--he told us he took "Astrology" at Plymouth State, we think he meant Astronomy).

Uncle Kim once told me he was a brother of the TKE fraternity--he knew what brotherhood and camaraderie meant. I am grateful for the long friendship he shared with my father.

Uncle Kim was the type of uncle that you could sit on the back of a boat with sharing some beers and be perfectly content. His spirit will live on in Pat, Kara, Ellen and the beautiful new addition, Myra.

I remember Kim looked up to his brother Keith as Keith was a brother of TKE. Kim followed Keith in the TKE fraternity. I heard that the hazing was nothing less than brutal.

“ I first met Kim a long time ago; so long ago the memory is hazy. Of course we were both probably hazy when we met. Anne & I had travelled to Plymouth State to see Pat. While we were all asleep in her dorm room a skinny, long haired guy with glasses was climbing through the back window. My first encounter with the Frenchman!

It wasn't long before we became part of a large and growing family. We soon became fast friends. Not the type of friend you see or call every day. But one of the gifts you get being part of a family. You get a chance to meet someone you otherwise would never run across. You develop a friendship based on a shared past and future. I was always glad I met Kim Parent.

Kim and I were also members of an exclusive club; we got to marry a Lawlor girl. The odds of one guy pulling this feat off were long. But 2 in a row! We pulled it off and it changed both our lives forever. Our running joke in the early years was which of us Ma Lawlor was least impressed with. We were usually tied for last place! I know he impressed Mike Lawlor; particularly when he and Pat were parked on a dark street by the lake and ran out of gas. I don't think Mike was buying the explanation.

One of the things I'll always remember about Kim was how proud he was of his family, including his many nieces and nephews. If you were on the right track you were "a good kid". Being a good kid was high praise from Uncle Kim.

It's true we moved him a LOT. He would buy us pizza and little beer for our troubles... He always seemed to run out of beer. Then he would bill his company for the move. Bert, Mick and I always knew he made a profit on every move.

There were a lot of laughs over a lot of years. Kim was a fun guy to be with. He lived by his terms and was not afraid to tell you what he thought. He tried to come off as hard case but he didn't fool us. He was a good guy who you liked to be around. Everyone liked Kim, he was that type of person. An original. I'll miss him and won't forget him.

“Kim started hanging out at my parents house with my sister Pat in the mid 70,s probably around 1976.He was quiet at first ,a little shy but it wasn't long he was one of us.He fit in right away.He hit it off with my other brother in law Mike Pearson right away.They had one thing in common they both enjoyed having a good time.Kim thought I was a little crazy back then ,probably because I crawled in bed with him a few times not knowing he was in my room after a long night of partying.He started sleeping on my parents couch after that.I probably moved him 10 times myself but it was always an adventure.He was so disgusted with my parents black and white tv he bought them a colored one so he could watch the Red Sox and Bruins in color when he was at their house.He was a good husband to my sister Pat and a good Dad to Kara and Ellen and he would of been a wonderful Grandfather as well.We had a lot of nick names for Kim ,all in good fun such as Clem,The hick from the sticks and I may have called him a dumb Frenchman once. But the best thing I ever called him was " brother in law " and he was a good one.You would be hard pressed to find someone to say a bad word about him.I will really miss him.Rest in peace pal.Mickey “ Kim enjoyed playing the role of the grumpy, NH native curmudgeon. He was a friendly guy who enjoyed the simple things in life: a hockey game on the TV, a cold beer, a quiet morning with his fishing gear. Back in the day, I think I helped move him and Pat about 10 times. I knew him for 38 years - but there was probably a lot about him that I didn't know. I think he might have been a spy in real life! He was a unique and fun brother-in-law to have...someone that you were always glad to see. He will be missed.
