“ Mark was a friend of my husband Joe, who passed away April 2016. Mark emailed the latest cancer research to Joe, and visited with Joe when he was in the hospital. I will always be grateful to Mark for his love of Joe. I tried to keep in touch, calling to see how he was doing, the last time was a month or so ago. He kept a positive and upbeat spirit. My sincere condolences to his wonderful wife and all his family, friends and acquaintances. He was a kind person and will be missed.

“ Patti, words here however kind and well meaning, will never be enough to ease in any small way what you are going through. Please know however that those of us who love you, care for you and share your loss will do whatever we can to comfort and help you find some peace of mind however small. Hopefully the strength of our love will give you the courage to face the upcoming days and cherish the love and memories that Mark and you enjoyed together.
Love, Jake

“ Patti, you and Mark had a truly beautiful relationship. You complimented one another in so many wonderful ways. It was always a joy to see you together - the love you shared was always so evident. You have suffered such a great loss and I know that nothing anyone can say to you can ease the acute pain you are feeling. Please try to take comfort in the wonderful memories of the time you shared together and although far to short, the time was full of love, mutual respect and support of one another. Vinnie and I send you are love and are here for you for anything you need.

“ Dear Patti, Sitting on the beach at the Cove and listening to you tell the story of you and Mark, even though he was "not doing well", provided me with the insight of what he meant to you and your children. “ Patti got her start in commercial real estate years ago with me (which is why she is so successful today!) and I know Mark was a big supporter of her real estate exploits around the Seacoast. My sincerest sympathy to Patti and her children who I know also adored Mark. Even though Mark is gone, Patti, your many real estate friends are here to support you however we can. Look at it this way, Patti - Mark didn't pass on, he just went to the next big deal in the sky and he is waiting for you to close that deal as he smiles down on you.
