“ Ryan was my brother and I don't mean it the way frat brothers mean it. I mean that Ryan touched my life in an amazing and beautiful way that will live with me forever. At first I was a little intimidated by him. I was a pledge. He was a senior member and I did everything I could to get him to talk to me - let alone be my friend. Well that summer after my first year in the house Ryan and I lived in the house with four other guys and became closer than any friend. We truly became brothers. We would spend Christmas and thanksgiving holidays together. When the house emptied I always knew that Ryan would be upstairs with Snickers and I would have someone to talk to. Someone who cared and would be there for me. We all battle problems. I battled addiction for ten years and I still feel the haunting effects, but I always thought death would never come for me. Other people died not me. Well I would trade my life for Ryan's any day of the week. He was compassionate and caring. Funny and wild. We made some of the best memories of my life and now I lay in bed at night, eluded by sleep and I think back. A joke, a crazy adventure, an unforgettable night. We did a lot of dumb things but I wouldn't trade all my mistakes or choices for anything. Except maybe to have been there for Ryan when he needed me. Because he was always there when I needed him. I love you Ryan Lattime and I'm so sorry I let you down. I'm so sorry I wasn't there to help you when you needed me. I will never forget you brother. Rest in peace and make sure you reserve a table and some bottle service for is when I meet you in the next life. See you soon LA Times.

“ Ryan, I can still hear your voice, and when I close my eyes I can still see that handsome smile! I would do anything to have you back, even if it was just five more minutes. You meant so much to me Ry. You picked me up during my lowest times, you saved me. you were my handsome little country boy, so loving, caring and sweet. It is completely and totally heart wrenching that you are no longer here, with the ones who loved you most. You know he could've of said anything to anybody to make them smile, Nd he'd succeed! I never met anybody who had such a way with words, you were truly a saint. I'll never forget the night you and Matthew were wrestling, the next minute you both turned and jumped on me! One of the best nights of my life, then the night I will relive over and over again, the night of the fireworks the night I fell head over heels in love with you! I never knew I could have such an amazing connection with somebody, but with Ryan it was like fireworks everyday I spent with him. He was my shot of whiskey and I was his. He was my rock when I wanted to fly away, and my anchor when I would go astray. Mt life is going to be so off and so different without this man in it. I will stay strong like Ryan would want and continue to do the right things in life, be happy never take less than I deserve and live the life Ryan would want me to live.
I love you so much it hurts

Rest in paradise bugg I will forever miss you!!

“ From middle school through high school Ryan was my best friend. We were together for just about every minute of our formative years. We spent countless hours playing baseball, reenacting the heroics of our favorite WWF wrestlers, just being kids.

I remember first hanging out with Ryan when my family moved to New Hampshire: I felt like I had nobody and that no one liked me. But Ryan and his family were so welcoming! They helped me become more confident and laid the foundation for the person I would become. It was during those years when I was closest with Ryan that I had a second home: I had a brother, I had a second family, and I wasn't alone.

In our late teens and twenties Ryan and I went on to different colleges. We lost touch. However, the memory of our times together persisted. I last contacted him this past summer. He was doing very well and I felt the need to congratulate him. I was happy that he had found happiness.

When I learned of his death, I was crushed. It was like a piece of me had died. After much reflection though, I can say that Ryan's warmth, his welcoming, his friendliness, his good spirit will forever live on with me and with everyone who he has touched.

Ryan's was a flame that went out too soon, but I'll never forget just how bright he made my world.

“ Ryan and I met freshman year of high school. He was my first love, my high school sweetheart, and over the next 4 years after we always came back to one another whether it was to just catch up or spend time together. We watched each other grow from high school to college. Thank you for showing me how to love myself and showing me how to love someone unconditionally with everything you have Ry. I will never forget our wonderful memories and our time together. My heart and prayers are with the Lattime family and Ryan's brothers and friends.

“ There are countless memories I shared with Ryan during our time as brothers and classmates that will never be forgotten. More importantly, his value to many younger guys like myself he helped mold into men will last forever. There are little pieces of Ryan in all of us, and until we meet again, it is our honor and duty to make you proud while you look down on us.

“ Ryan was my fraternity brother. He always filled the room with big smiles and a huge amount of energy that you couldn't help but return in favor. People would always stop by his room to hang out with him and GQ. I personally found myself talking about deeper topics with him like the nature of reality and how love really is a force like gravity that surrounds everything. Most people would shy away, but Ryan was always open to push the boundaries of his understanding of life. Always able to do the right thing and bring love into the world I will always miss Ryan. He has not gone in vain, however. In the short time that he was here he lived life to its fullest potential, took chances, and greeted everything that came at him with a smile and enthusiasm for more. I will love you always brother - see you on the other side.

“ Ryan and I were "BFFs" (his term :) at UNH. Ryan tried to have a somewhat tough exterior but he had one of the biggest hearts of anyone I knew. Ryan was a loyal and protective friend. I know he would do anything for me. I can't believe he is gone, it is truely a great loss. My greatest condolences to his family.

“ *Nicole, Matthew, Diane, and Vance,
I will always remember Ryan as a happy and energetic little kid. I feel so fortunate that I ran into him at a Kenny Chesney concert a few years ago. In the midst of thousands of people we recognized each other. We hugged and chatted and it was the highlight of my night. My heart hurts for you and I send you my love.
