“ Theresa, Thank You for allowing me the privilege to be a part of your life. It's funny sometimes how people meet and how that one person can change the path of what you thought you were supposed to do. I guess it was Gods plan all along we just didn't know it. Your smile and laugh are the best and I will forever remember the sound. I promise to take good care of "Big Baby". He loves you too. So good-bye for now and I'll see you in Heaven. I have been doing a lot of praying for her,I'm glad she is now with her Mother again! She missed her very much! She spoke of her Mother often when she was with me,I was proud when she called me Mom to! She was very lucky to have so many Moms,we all love her!

“ Theresa moved in with my family when I was 15 (I am now 22) and I'll never forget her as long as I live. When she first moved in I wasn't sure what to think of her, now, 6 1/2 years later I look at her as my little sister and I love(d) her so much. She was family and we'll miss her dearly. In the meantime I'll be singing to the Tangled and Frozen soundtracks while always thinking of her! I'll never forget her contagious laugh or her countless catchphrases that always made me smile. I'll see you again one day my chicky! XOXO

“ Theresa will never be forgotten by me. She was a great sister inlaw, and a wonderful Aunt to my son, Glendon Eaton IV. He was 1 month old when we met Theresa, her address was at Crochet Mountain at this time. The minute I put the baby in her arms, a smile came over Theresa. A smile that will live forever in my mind. I seen that sparkling smile hundreds of times more, after she came back home to live. She loved music and when the radio played one of her favorites, her and Glendon would be singing a lot louder than the radio. And her smile would stretch across her face and her eyes would gleem. A gleem like most of the family members have. On a hot day, you would see them both in the swimming pool making whirlpools, and always of course sporting that unique gleaming smile. R.I.P. Theresa A. Eaton :-) the Family circle is now reunited.
